Welcome to today's lecture on business management.

Many small firms fail in their first year, and the reason is usually the same: they have no clear plan.

A successful business needs enough capital to cover its costs, including rent, salaries and advertising.

Marketing is also important. You need to know your customers, so you should study the local market carefully.

Online shopping has changed everything. Many companies now sell their products through websites and social media.

Another key point is cash flow. You should check your bank statement every month and control your debt.

If a business offers a discount, it may attract new customers, but it must still make a profit.

Finally, good communication between employers and employees makes a team much stronger.

Let me finish with a few more business terms. In a corporation, the board of directors makes the big decisions, and the executives carry them out.

Senior managers report to the board, and the administration handles the daily paperwork.

A business organization needs money to grow, so it may raise a fund from investors, and investment in research brings new products.

If sales are poor, a company may put its goods on sales at a normal price or even below cost.

Marketing debt is dangerous: if a firm cannot pay, it may face a financial problem and finally bankruptcy.

Remember, a good business keeps a balance between profit and responsibility.

Let me finish with market notes. A commercial company plans its expansion carefully, and global trade connects every country.

International competition makes prices lower, and a new product launch brings attention.

The income from sales must cover the cost, and the value of the brand grows over time.

An advertisement increases sales, but the quality and purpose of the product still matter most.

A market invasion by a big company can change local prices, so small shops must be creative.

欢迎参加今天的商业管理讲座。

许多小公司在第一年就失败了，原因通常是相同的：没有清晰的计划。

成功的企业需要足够的资金来支付成本，包括租金、工资和广告。

营销也很重要。你需要了解你的客户，所以应该仔细研究本地市场。

网上购物改变了一切。许多公司现在通过网站和社交媒体销售产品。

另一个关键点是现金流。你应该每月查看银行对账单，并控制债务。

如果企业提供折扣，可能会吸引新客户，但仍然必须盈利。

最后，雇主和雇员之间良好沟通能使团队更强大。

让我用几个商业术语结束。在公司中，董事会做出重大决定，高管负责执行。

高级经理向董事会汇报，行政部门处理日常文书工作。

企业组织需要资金发展，因此可能向投资者筹集基金，对研究的投资带来新产品。

如果销售不佳，公司可能按正常价格甚至低于成本促销商品。

营销债务是危险的：如果公司无力偿还，可能面临财务问题，最终破产。

记住，好的企业要在利润和责任之间保持平衡。

让我用市场笔记结束。商业公司仔细规划扩张，全球贸易连接每个国家。

国际竞争使价格更低，新产品发布带来关注。

销售的收入必须覆盖成本，品牌的价值随时间增长。

广告增加销售，但产品的质量和用途仍然最重要。

大公司对市场的侵入可能改变当地价格，所以小店必须创新。
